

Posted on Thu, Feb. 20, 2003

Stu Bykofsky | Celeb service

HOW TO FIND OUT IF YOU REALLY RATE

By Stu Bykofsky
stuspy@phillynews.com

People paper people

Former WWMR DJ Barsky is still sitting it out, but Stu's Spies say I can Point you in the direction of his next job...Rittenhouse Hotel VP/GM David Benton is a full-service exec. Monday morning, when "Dame Edna" needed to get to 30th Street to catch a train, Benton volunteered to drive "Edna" (actually, actor Barry Humphries) to the station in a hotel four-wheel-drive SUV. All was fine until 29th street, where a stranded car blocked Benton from making a right. He sprightly swung around the other side of the traffic island, on the wrong side of the street. "Is this going to be all right?" worried Humphries. "I'm British," grinned Benton. "I always drive on the left"...John Payne, a real estate agent in the Newtown office of Keller Williams Realty, made his national TV debut on "Saturday Night Live" as an extra in a U.N. skit. (His son Josh is an SNL talent coordinator.)

Dan Gross contributed to this column. E-mail Stu Bykofsky at stuspy@phillynews.com or dial up the StuSpyline: 215-854-5963. For Byko's recent columns, go to <http://go.philly.com/byko>.

© 2003 Philadelphia Daily News and wire service sources. All Rights Reserved.
<http://www.philly.com>